To all holders of a Certificate of Exemption from the Wyoming Collection Agency Board:

On February 10, 2021, the Wyoming Collection Agency Board terminated the Certificate of Exemption process. This process allowed entities to answer a series of questions to determine whether they were required to obtain a license. The Board determined that it lacked statutory authority to issue such certificates and that such certificates had no legal relevance. On March 16, 2022, the Board voted to clarify that it would no longer recognize any previously issued Certificates of Exemption. This determination does not have any effect on the requirements for licensure. An entity not engaged in regulated activities is still not required to be licensed.
